HARPENDEN Tutors specialise in a range of booster classes in GCSE and A-level subjects, serving the student community from across the surrounding area and beyond by establishing a real partnership between tutors, students, parents and schools.

Managing director Nico Goh MA, PGCE, founded the company after noticing a growing demand for tutoring and booster sessions while teaching full-time and also running one-to-one sessions in GCSE and A-level business studies.

This was the impetus he needed to establish Harpenden Tutors, as a local resident with children at one of the town's schools he wanted to be able to offer other parents and students the opportunity to make an informed choice about new ways to enhance their learning further.

Harpenden Tutors offers exam board-specific guidance, with classes of no more than eight students to ensure they are all given focused guidance and advice based on what they are being taught at school.

Their teachers will also guide students on the best approach to revision, help identify their weaknesses and build on their strengths, giving them the necessary skills to increase their confidence.

Nico has been working in education for 15 years, and also has experience as a team leader of examiners, and completed a formal one year course in careers education and guidance at the University of Cambridge's Department of Education.

Although he is mainly responsible for the quality assurance of all the courses he is still able to find time to tutor on a one-to-one basis for both GCSE and A-level business studies.

All of the staff at Harpenden Tutors are fully-qualified teachers with experience as either subject leaders and/or examiners and have gone through a very rigorous recruitment process.

In the future the company plans to build on the subjects they currently offer by developing an increased number of booster classes, without compromising on the high quality of their service.

They are also planning to invest further with the provision of additional booster courses for all year groups, including numeracy and literacy classes from the primary school sector.

Nico explained: "We don't just want to be available during the exam period like most of our competitors, we want to be available throughout the year."

"We also do not wish to compete with companies who have revision centres all around the country, but instead remain based in Harpenden and support the excellent reputation of the schools in the town and local surrounding areas."

From September they will be focusing on offering two hour weekend booster sessions in GCSE maths, science, AS and A2 maths. Booster courses in GCSE English will commence after the October half-term. Bookings are being taken now.

Harpenden Tutors also offer a bookable UCAS Personal Statement advice and guidance service.

All courses and workshops are constantly updated and the range of subjects offered is extending all the time.

Harpenden Tutors are taking bookings for two day revision boosters to be held in the first two weekends in January for that month's exams.

They are also planning to offer a formal qualification called LAMDA (London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art) at Level 3, which provides invaluable UCAS points.

If all of this sounds like the sort of extra educational support you want for your child, then it's worth considering using the services of Harpenden Tutors.

Parent's testimonial

"Just to let you know Tom obtained A* for Chemistry, A* for Maths and an A for Physics. This allowed him to achieve his goal in getting to Imperial College London that required one A* & two As. Could you thank all the tutors that gave Tom such invaluable information during the Harpenden Tutors revision classes this summer. It was money well spent and gave him so much more confidence. Thank you.
